

CURRENT OR FORMER STUDENTS SEEKING ADMISSION TO A NEW PROGRAM

Students currently or previously enrolled in The Graduate School (TGS) who are applying to a new TGS program are considered Transfer Applicants. Transfer Applicants include:

- those who are enrolled or have been enrolled in or completed a program in The Graduate School (TGS) and wish to enroll in a new TGS program (<https://www.tgs.northwestern.edu/admission/academic-programs/>) or
- those who wish to change the degree they are pursuing (from non-degree to master's or master's to PhD) within the same program of study

Transfer Applicants must submit an online application (<https://www.applyweb.com/nugrad/>) making sure to select "TGS Transfer Student" on the first page of the application. Applicants are held to the same requirements (<https://www.tgs.northwestern.edu/admission/application-procedures/application-requirements/>) and deadlines (<https://www.tgs.northwestern.edu/admission/application-procedures/application-deadlines.html>) as any New Student applicants. Late applications will not be considered unless there is an exceptional circumstance. Admission is granted by The Graduate School in consultation with the program to which the applicant is applying. University funding awarded by a student's current program does not follow the student to the new program.
