

INTERDISCIPLINARY BIOLOGICAL SCIENCES PROGRAM PHD

Degree Requirements

The following requirements are in addition to, or further elaborate upon, those requirements outlined in The Graduate School Policy Guide (<https://catalogs.northwestern.edu/tgs/academic-policies-procedures/>).

Total Units Required: 9

Required Courses

- Core courses: 4
- Electives or additional core courses: 4
- IBIS 432-0 Statistics for Life Sciences

Non-credit Required Courses

- IBIS 421-0 Rigor & Reproducibility in Research
- IBIS 423-0 Ethics in Biological Research

Other PhD Degree Requirements

- Examinations: qualifying examination: part 1 during second year of study, part 2 during third year
- Research/Projects: laboratory research based on dissertation proposal
- PhD Dissertation: written dissertation; annual presentation of research-in-progress to thesis committee
- Final Evaluations: defense consisting of written dissertation, oral defense of dissertation to thesis committee, and public presentation of research accomplishments
- Publication: acceptance of at least one first-author data paper before defense
- Teaching: two quarters as a teaching assistant
- Other: three laboratory rotations in first year, intended to assist student in selecting thesis advisor; regular participation in seminars, journal clubs, and annual scientific retreat